National Symposium on Family Issues

Each year at Penn State, the College of the Liberal Arts, the College of Health and Human Development, and the Population Research Institute hold a two-day symposium on a key problem focusing on families. Past symposia have focused on such questions as: What are the implications of parental conflict for the development of young children? How do neighborhoods enhance or interfere with families’ abilities to monitor teenagers? What are the origins of cohabitation unions, and how do such unions affect the likelihood of divorce? Sixteen of the top scholars in the field of family research convene to present and critique research on the focal topic and to consider their implications for effective programs and public policy. The proceedings of each symposium are published in book form. More about the Symposium Series...

Books Resulting from Past Symposia

- Why-Family Challenges for Low-Income Parents and Their Children
- Children's Influence on Family Dynamics: The Neglected Side of Family Relationships
- Just Living Together: Implications of Cohabitation for Children, Families, and Social Policy
- Couples in Conflict
- Does It Take a Village? Community Effects on Children, Adolescents, and Families
- Transitions to Adulthood in a Changing Economy: No Win, No Family, No Future?
- Men in Families: When Do They Get Involved? What Difference Does It Make?
- Immigration and the Family: Research and Policy on U.S. Immigrants
- Family-School Links: How Do They Affect Educational Outcomes?
- Stepfamilies: Who Benefits? Who Does Not?

Does It Take a Village? Community Effects on Children, Adolescents, and Families

The chapters in this volume are based on the presentations and discussions from the sixth annual National Symposium on Family Issues, held at the Pennsylvania State University November 5-6, 1999.

Citation

From the Preface
"It takes a village to raise a child" is a saying seemingly imbued with wisdom that cuts across time and place. Indeed, studies from a variety of disciplines have found evidence that community and neighborhood factors play a role in people's decisions to marry and have children (in or out of marriage), family stability, childrearing strategies, and children's psychosocial functioning and educational achievement. As studies have become more sophisticated, however, there has been increasing debate about community and neighborhood effects; indeed, some studies have found little evidence that they make an independent contribution, net of residents' own personal characteristics. Given this ambiguity in findings, and the important policy and program ramifications of this area of research, the time is right to bring together a talented, interdisciplinary group of researchers and program experts to consider what is known about how communities and neighborhood make their mark on families, children, and adolescents.

Key Topics
1. How Do Communities Undergird or Undermine Human Development? What Are the Relevant Contexts and What Mechanisms Are at Work?

Lead Speaker: Robert Sampson, University of Chicago
Discussants:
- James S. Coleman, Institute for Research and Reform in Education
- Barry Lee, Pennsylvania State University
- Douglas Massey, University of Pennsylvania

2. How Do Neighborhoods Enhance or Interfere with Families' Abilities to Raise Children?

Lead Speaker: Margaret Spencer, University of Pennsylvania
Discussants:
- Jill Korbm, Case Western Reserve University
- Scott South, SUNY-Albany

3. How Do Neighborhoods Affect the Development of Adolescent Problem Behavior?

Lead Speaker: Greg Duncan, Northwestern University

Discussants:
- John Bily, Battelle Institute
- Linda Burton, Pennsylvania State University
- Stephen Small, University of Wisconsin

4. What Policies Can Strengthen Neighborhoods as Contexts for Child and Adolescent Well-Being?

Lead Speaker: James Connell, Institute for Research and Reform in Education

Discussants:
- Ralph Taylor, Temple University
- Mark Greenberg, Pennsylvania State University
- Dale Ahlden, Search Institute

Couples in Conflict

The chapters in this volume are based on the presentations and discussions from the seventh annual National Symposium on Family Issues, held at the Pennsylvania State University November 1-2, 1999.

Citation

From the Preface
Couples conflict is an important antecedent of domestic violence, ineffective parenting, and marital dissolution, phenomena that threaten the strong functioning of contemporary families and the adults and children living in families. As such, couple conflict is a topic of critical importance to family scholars and those charged with developing policies and programs in this area. Not all couple conflict is damaging, however. Indeed, a thread running through this volume is that constructive conflict and negotiation is beneficial for relationships. Together, the chapters in this volume provide a foundation for thinking about creative ways in which our society can work to prevent or minimize destructive couple conflict and to enhance couples’ abilities to constructively handle their differences.

Key Topics

1. What Are the Societal and Bio-Evolutionary Underpinnings of Couple Conflict?
   Lead Speakers: Martin Daly and Margo Wilson, McMaster University
   Discussants:
   • Jay Belsky, Pennsylvania State University
   • Frances Goldscheider, Brown University
   • Rena Repetti, University of California, Los Angeles

2. What Are the Interpersonal Roots of Couple Conflict? What Are Consequences for Individuals and Couples?
   Lead Speaker: Thomas Bradbury, University of California, Los Angeles
   Discussants:
   • Steven Beach, University of Georgia, Athens
   • Michael Johnson, Pennsylvania State University
   • James Cordova, University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign

3. What Effects Does Couple Conflict Have on Children? How Do Individual Differences in Children Moderate These Effects?

9/24/2003
Lead Speaker: Mark Cummings, University of Notre Dame
Discussants:
- Christy Miller Buchanan, Wake Forest University
- Rand Conger, Iowa State University
- John Grych, Marquette University

Lead Speaker: Matt Sanders, Queensland University, Australia
Discussants:
- Richard Gelles, University of Pennsylvania
- Theodore Dorn, Family Impact Seminar
- Robert Emery, University of Virginia

Just Living Together: Implications of Cohabitation for Children, Families, and Social Policy

The chapters in this volume are based on the presentations and discussions from the eighth annual National Symposium on Family Issues, held at the Pennsylvania State University October 30-31, 2000.

Citation

From the Preface
Forty-one percent of all women between the ages of 15 and 44 have cohabited and 7% are cohabiting now. For some it is a prelude to marriage. For others, it is a post-marital arrangement which may last a few months or several years. For still others it is a coupling that is a substitute for formal marriage and may involve having children. The practice of cohabitation varies greatly by economic circumstances as well as racial and ethnic background. Here we examine the origins of informal unions and how they are linked to the economy and prevailing attitudes and values. Also explored are the consequences of cohabitation for family relationships and for the well-being of children who live with adults in such unions, as well as a look at policy issues and legal rights and obligations.

Key Topics
1. What Are the Historical and Cross-Cultural Foundations of Cohabitation?
   Lead Speaker: Kathleen Kieman, London School of Economics and Political Science
   Discussants:
   - Nancy Landale, Pennsylvania State University
   - Andrea Hunter, University of North Carolina at Greensboro
   - Julie Brines, University of Washington

2. What Is the Role of Cohabitation in Contemporary North American Family Structure?
   Lead Speaker: Pamela Smock, University of Michigan
   Discussants:
   - Rukmalie Jayakody, Pennsylvania State University
   - Rebekah Levine Coley, Harvard University
   - Celine Le Bourdais, University of Montreal

3. What Is the Long- and Short-Term Impact of Cohabitation on Child Well-Being?
   Lead Speaker: Wendy Manning, Bowling Green State University
   Discussants:
   - Ariel Kail, University of Chicago
   - Bruce Ellis, University of Canterbury, New Zealand

9/24/2003
• Susan Brown, Bowling Green State University

4. How Are Cohabiting Couples and Their Children Affected by Current Policies? What Policies Are Needed for These Individuals?

Lead Speaker: Wendell Primus, Center on Budget and Policy Priorities

Discussants:
- Ron Haskins, Subcommittee on Human Resources, Committee on Ways and Means
- Anne Winkler, University of Missouri-St. Louis
- Margaret Matheny, University of Pittsburgh School of Law

Children's Influence on Family Dynamics: The Neglected Side of Family Relationships

The chapters in this volume are based on the presentations and discussions from the ninth annual National Symposium on Family Issues, held at the Pennsylvania State University December 6-7, 2001.

Citation

From the Preface
Any parent who has raised more than one child is likely to be keenly aware of subtle or even striking differences among their offspring. Although siblings raised together in the same family often differ markedly in terms of gender, temperament, abilities, interests, personality, choices of friends and activities, and so on, all too often family researchers have ignored individual differences in children. The central premise of this volume is that children bring personal qualities to their relationships with other family members that help shape family interaction, family relationships, and even family processes that family researchers have called "parenting". Here we address ways in which children's personal qualities make their mark on families in ways that may in turn influence children's subsequent development.

Key Topics
1. What Features of Children Shape Family Relationship and How?
   - Presider: Elizabeth Susman, The Pennsylvania State University
   - Lead Speaker: David Reiss, George Washington University
   - Discussants:
     - Kathleen McCartney, Harvard University
     - Xiaojia Ge, University of California-Davis
     - J. Richard Udry, University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill

2. What Role Does Infant and Early Childhood Temperament Play in the Development of Relationship with Parents?
   - Presider: Leann Birch, The Pennsylvania State University
   - Lead Speaker: Susan Crockenberg, University of Vermont
   - Discussants:
     - Cynthia Stifter, Pennsylvania State University
     - James McHale, Clark University
     - Parrela Cole, Pennsylvania State University

3. What Role Do Adolescents Play in Actively Shaping Their Relationships with Parents, Siblings, and Friends/Peers?
   - Presider: Karen Brennan, The Pennsylvania State University

Work-Family Challenges for Low-Income Parents and Their Children

The chapters in this volume are based on the presentations and discussions from the tenth annual National Symposium on Family Issues, held at the Pennsylvania State University October 19-21, 2002.

Citation

Over the last two decades, family scholars have become increasingly interested in the interconnections between paid work and family life. Much of this research, however, has focused on the lives of middle class and professional families and has ignored low-income families and the working poor. This oversight is particularly troubling given recent welfare legislation that has pushed many single mothers into the paid labor force. Here we focus on issues faced by parents struggling to gain a foothold on the economic ladder.

Key Topics
1. How has the availability, content, and stability of the jobs available for the working poor changed in recent decades? How do work circumstances for low-income families vary as a function of gender, family structure, race, ethnicity, and geography? What implication do these changes have for the widening inequality between the haves and have-nots?

Lead Speaker: Jared Bernstein, Economic Policy Institute
Discussants:
- Paula England, Northwestern University
- Leif Jensen, The Pennsylvania State University
- Lynne Casper, National Institute of Child Health and Human Development

2. What features of work timing matter for families? What do we know about the impacts of shift work, long hours, seasonal work, and temporary work on employees, their family relationships, and their children's development?

Lead Speaker: Harriet Fresser, University of Maryland
Discussants:
- Maureen Perry-Jenkins, University of Massachusetts-Amherst
- Kerry Daly, University of Guelph
- David Almeida, University of Arizona

3. How are the child care needs of low-income families being met? What challenges do these families face with regard to child-care, and how can child-care services be strengthened to support parents and enhance child development?

Lead Speaker: Aletha Huston, University of Texas-Austin
Discussants:
- Barrie Thorne, University of California-Berkeley
- Cynelle Raver, University of Chicago
- Martha Zaslow, Child Trends

4. How are the challenges of managing work and family experienced by low-income men and women? What are the implications of employment circumstance for men and women's relationships with each other, their children, other family members, and friends?

Lead Speakers: Kathryn Edin, Northwestern University, and Susan Clampet-Lundquist, University of Pennsylvania
